2. Develop the abstract in another document and review before attempting to enter the information.
3. Keep it concise; the abstract should provide major points and key content your poster will address.
4. Address the following: Why this topic? What is the purpose of this poster? What are the main findings? What is the key take home message(s) for the poster viewer?
5. References should be recent (at least within the past 5 years, 3 years is preferable).
6. Solicit the expertise of a trusted colleague and have them review the abstract to ensure its clarity.
7. Review the submission for any typos, punctuation and grammatical inconsistencies.
8. Limit the abstract to 200 words.

If my poster is accepted and I want to display it at the conference, do I have to register for the conference?

If your poster is accepted, you do not have to register for the conference to display it in the Poster Center. If your poster is a top scoring poster and you are selected for poster oral presentation, you do not have to register for the conference to present.

If my poster is accepted, how will I know where to hang my poster at the conference?

Each accepted poster is assigned a 'code' upon acceptance. The codes include a category i.e., E=Education, R=Research and I=Industry and a number. You will get a letter and a number assigned to your poster. (Example Code: E10, indicates that it's an Education Poster, and its number is 10).

SGNA staff will hang the codes on the poster board stands at the conference. Locate your respective poster's code and hang it there.

Can I ship my poster to the convention center ahead of time?

There are no staff available to accept personal shipments at the site of the Annual Course. SGNA recommends presenters ship the poster to their hotel room and carry it to the convention center.

I'm not sure if my abstract should be submitted as Education or Research/Evidence-Based Practice. What should I do?

Contact SGNA \(info@sgna.org\) for further clarification.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, many conferences are occurring virtually. What happens if the SGNA 48th Annual Course becomes a virtual event?

SGNA is currently monitoring the evolving situation surrounding the COVID-19 pandemic to hold an Annual Course that prioritizes the safety of our members, attendees, speakers and exhibitors. If the 48th Annual Course is held virtually, there will be a dedicated virtual Poster Center to display your poster.

My poster was accepted for presentation during the 47th Annual Course. Instead of presenting it at the 47th Annual Course, I completed a survey and/or contacted SGNA indicating that I planned to present it at the 48th Annual Course. Do I need to take any further action?

You do not need to take any further action. Please keep an eye out for upcoming emails regarding important deadlines and Poster Center information.
